CITY TRUSTEES

Nothing Startling—Routine Business Only

All members present. The supply committee reported that the motor cycle for the marshal had been received with all necessary equipment. Mr. Sutton, representing the Fire Underwriters, addressed the board in regard to additional fire protection. The clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for furnishing the electric light department with supplies for ensuing year. The proposed ordinance providing for inspection of dairies, milk, etc., was referred to ordinance and judiciary committee. The city attorney reported that he had sent to the Domestic Gas Co. request for statement of volume of business transacted in Glendale, but had received no reply.

The following resolution was passed by unanimous vote: "Resolved, That we, the trustees of Glendale, in case the consolidation election in Tropico and Glendale carries, on Saturday, Dec. 16th, would be in favor of taking the necessary steps to extend the lighting plant over Tropico. We are of the opinion that the people will never be taxed to pay the principal on the bonds for this extension, as our system is entirely self-supporting."

A number of warrants were reported favorably. The tax collector reported $1616.08 collected during the week. Total $10,727.21.

A communication was read from Mr. C. H. H. in regard to improvement work on First street. An extension of 30 days was granted. R. R. Smith for the improvement of First street and Louise street. The street superintendent was instructed to secure information and report on cost of securing oil testing apparatus.

Two permits were granted for doing sidewalk work on a portion of Sixth street by private contract. An ordinance was passed changing the grade of a portion of Sixth street.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Remember the regular meeting, Friday, 2:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Beers, 309 Belmont street. This will be our last program "On Voting," ladies, before we cast our first ballot. Be sure and plan your affairs and come out. Mrs. M. E. Dell has been to a great deal of trouble to prepare these instructions, and let every lady in the valley make it her duty to be present.

We hope that our women will become intelligent voters. Listen to what the mayor of Riverside says in the California Voice: "Riverside never had as much prosperity as since the saloon ceased to exist. Stores do not become empty, but on the other hand rentals have steadily increased, and the class of tenants and business generally have become very much better. Street work with us has increased tremendously and in addition to general taxation for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911, our people voluntarily asked for $250,000 worth of Ymca work on streets, sewers and sidewalks. Our electric light plant is the envy of every public utility company in the state, and we can make good money at lower rates than the company gives. There is no comparison with a town without saloons and one with them. There is absolutely no necessity for saloons, either from a business standpoint or for any other reason."

Riverside has a magnificent new court house and elegant school buildings. City and county have been without saloons several years. We can easily build a $300,000 court house and $100,000 high school if we keep out the saloons and make the county wholly dry." S. C. Evans, mayor.

United States Judge Chas. A. Pollock of Fargo, N. D., in 1910, paid this tribute to the prohibition law: "Thirty years' residence in Dakota, four of which were spent as a public prosecutor in territorial days under the license system, and over thirteen years last past as a presiding judge, called frequently as I am to hold court in all parts of the state, I have been furnished an opportunity to study with care the evolution of both systems. As an American citizen, as a lover of my country and of her institutions, I would fall in the duty I owe, not only to this, but to future generations, did I fall to record here my solemn conviction that the prohibition law has been one of the greatest instruments in bringing to our people that great prosperity and happiness they so much enjoy." Mrs. Hattie E. Gayford, Pres.

GEORGE LEWIS MILLER.

Was born near Columbia, Monroe county, Illinois, 1848, and passed away December 2, 1911. His father died when he was a lad of fourteen years, leaving him in charge of a family of six. He took care of the family like a father. Converted in 1871 and joined the Illinois conference in 1875. He served in pastorates ten years and then gave the rest of his life to evangelistic service. He was the author of a number of gospel hymns which were effectively used in his meetings. As a result of his labors several are in the pulpit, some in the missionary field; many in the deaconess ranks; and thousands of converts. In 1891 he was united in marriage with Miss Blanche Cloud, who with a daughter survive him. Interment in Forrest Lawn.

ELECTION SATURDAY

Are Glendale and Tropico to Consolidate?—From 2500 to 3000 Voters Interested

There are reports of opposition in Glendale to consolidation of this city and Tropico at Saturday's election, but a diligent search fails to show it up. There are no doubt a few voters who are satisfied so well with present conditions that they do not want them changed, but the great majority believe that no harm can come from a consolidation of the two adjoining municipalities. The population of Glendale now is about 5,000, and that of Tropico about 2,000. A city of 7,000 people here will undoubtedly carry weight, and as there will soon be an addition made on the north, the prospects are excellent for a city of 10,000 people here within a year.

The registration in Tropico foots up 953 voters; that of Glendale is not known definitely, but it must be near 2,000.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Border of West Bend, Iowa, are wintering in Glendale at 1317 Chestnut street.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB

Interesting Meeting

The regular meeting of the Tuesday Afternoon Club was held at the Country Club on Tuesday of this week. Many matters of interest were taken up before the program was begun. The president, Mrs. A. W. Tower, paid a beautiful tribute to Mrs. Ellen Brown Newcomb, a much beloved member who has recently been taken from our midst.

Mrs. H. E. Bartlett gave a most interesting and comprehensive report of the District Federation convention recently held in Ventura.

Mrs. Tower's announcement that 23 new members had come into the club this year met with general applause.

Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, chairman of the philanthropic committee expressed her gratitude to all who so generously responded to her request made at the last meeting and stated that her committee desired to send a Christmas gift to each of the boys in Mrs. Vance home for boys in Los Angeles. These gifts to consist of socks and ties. Mrs. Hutchinson suggested that all who wished to help might hand her the money and she would see that the gifts were wrapped separately and sent to each boy with a Christmas greeting or if any one preferred they might send the articles to her.

After the regular routine of business the program opened with a vocal solo by Mrs. C. D. Hellyer, who was accompanied by Mrs. Mattison B. Jones.

Miss Suzanne Dean of Los Angeles delighted all with live Christmas stories entitled, "The Broken Doll" and "Jane's Christmas Slippers." After another beautiful number by Mrs. Hellyer and Mrs. Jones, Miss Dean gave Maeterlinck's play, "Blue Bird." This play is a typical example of the symbolism and subtlety used in modern drama. The character of "Ardeanne" or "useless deliverance" portrays the sixth wife of Barbe Bleue endeavoring to liberate her sisters from the darkness of ignorance and bondage into which they have been cast, but to no avail.

Miss Dean's beautiful rendition of the play was greatly appreciated and many availed themselves of an opportunity of meeting her while light refreshments were served.

PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION OF THE FOURTH STREET SCHOOL.

The regular meeting of this association will be held on the third Thursday of this month, December 21, at the Fourth street school building.

One of the best and most interesting addresses of the year is to be delivered that day. Mrs. Katherine Pierce Wheat will speak on "Greater Motherhood."

A large attendance of the members is desired, as everything possible will be done to make the afternoon one of exceptional interest. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are in sympathy with this line of work.

Miss Atala Browning returned Monday from a week-end passed at Long Beach.

OBITUARY.

John L. Whitaker.

A large circle of friends in Glendale and vicinity and elsewhere as well were shocked by the news of the death of Mr. J. L. Whitaker at his home on Ninth street at a quarter before midnight last Saturday. Mr. Whitaker was in Los Angeles Tuesday evening at a chorus rehearsal and upon his return home at a late hour complained of being in considerable pain. The following morning a fever had developed and he found himself unable to go to Los Angeles to attend to his duties in the First National Bank where he had been a faithful employee for many years. Later in the day Dr. D. W. Hunt was called in and pronounced it to be a serious case of pneumonia. From that time the patient had the best of care, but the disease ran its quickly fatal course and the end came as above.

The funeral services were held at the church in Glendale, the church which he was one of the founders of 23 years ago. The building was crowded with friends of the deceased from many places outside of Glendale in addition to his neighbors here, and a large space near the chancel was filled with a great number of beautiful floral tributes. Brief services were read by Rev. Geo. Eley, Rev. McKenzie and Rev. R. O. Macintosh. Mr. Ernest Douglass, organist of St. Paul's church in Los Angeles, furnished the instrumental music, while the church choir, led by Mrs. McCann, sang two or three selections.

The body followed by many friends was taken to Forest Lawn cemetery where it was laid under the green turf, the last resting place covered by a mound of flowers. The pall bearers were A. C. Way and Philip Blumen from the First National Bank, Los Angeles; Prof. E. L. French, Soldiers Home, Sawtelle; R. C. Sternberg, E. W. Pack and J. C. Sherer, Glendale.

John Lackyn Whitaker was born near Ipswich, England, in 1850 and spent the most of his life in the city of London until coming to America in 1884 when with his family he came to Los Angeles. Shortly afterwards he moved to Antelope Valley and took up a government claim near Lancaster where the family remained for some time, coming to Glendale in 1888. He was in the employ of the old Los Angeles County Bank and when that institution went out of business, went over to the First National Bank of Los Angeles where he was employed up to the last. His most obvious character traits were love of music and of books.

When John Lackyn Whitaker died last Saturday night, there passed from earth a splendid soul. He was born an Englishman and his heart often turned longingly to the mother country, but for nearly a quarter of a century he was an ideal American citizen, intelligent, patriotic, moral. He had that pride in his English ancestry which is the natural heritage of his race, but he was also proud of his citizenship in the country of his adoption. He was a fine example of the self-educated man, for the period spent by him in schools was measured in months, not years, but there were few of his fellows who had accumulated a wider knowledge of books, and of human nature. His love of books was second only to his love of his fellow creatures and he possessed a memory that was remarkable in its ability to retain the best of all the knowledge that came in his way. He was a lover of music and one of the mild regrets that he occasionally expressed was that he had not devoted his life to it as a player on the grand instrument which he loved above others, the pipe organ. While he was a man of tenderest sympathy, he was so morally strong that his sympathies did not warp his judgment, and his opinions on public matters were the result of his calm and unbiased knowledge of the subject.

The one who writes these lines can testify as to the loyalty of his friendship, his devotion to his family, his country and his God.

Often has he spoken of a favorite resting place on old England's turf, where as he lay on his back and looked up at the all encircling sky, he pondered over the mysteries of the universe in which this little planet on which we live plays but a minor part. He studied the stars, and knew the constellations as they passed in well-

AN APPRECIATION.

He studied the stars, and knew the constellations as they passed in well-ordered procession through the fields of space, but he did not know them then as he knows them now!

A good citizen has passed away, a loving husband and father has been taken from those who held him dear, a loyal friend has gone from the ken of those who cherish his memory; but none of them may doubt that his pathway now is among the shining stars whose mysteries he longed to know, and with the knowledge of them comes to him great joy and peace!

AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

The illustrated lecture of Mr. Baumgardt last Friday evening in the auditorium was a great success and notwithstanding the fact that it was not well advertised, there was a large audience present to enjoy the "Caribbees of the Rhine." The lecture was very interesting and of absorbing interest all through. The proceeds go to the fund being started to form a scholarship fund that can be devoted to any worthy purposes that may arise.

The league game of basketball last Saturday was so one-sided, as the Glendale team won by a score of 51 to 9 made by the Monrovia boys. The next of the league games comes off next Saturday at South Pasadena when Glendale play the South Pasadena team.

Mr. Petty and Mr. Cross, secretaries of the Y. M. C. A., engaged in organizing the high school boys into a club pledged to clean, athletics, clean speech and a clean life—spent some time here the past week and secured a large number of signatures to their pledge cards.

The Juniors gave a very successful party in the gym last Saturday evening at which refreshments were served and a good time enjoyed. This evening (Friday) the tenth year pupils entertain their friends, the faculty appearing in the roles of chaperones.

Miss Holloway is still unable to return to her work on account of illness and her place is being filled in the domestic science department by Miss Ebert of Los Angeles.

There is great interest being taken in the first of the inter-school debates that is to come off here this evening (Friday). There are ten schools in the league; the school that secures the highest combined percentage in the league will be the champion. Friday evening the Glendale debaters will be Hazel Everts and Harold Story who will uphold the affirmative of the question, "Resolved, That California should furnish free text books to all students of public schools." The speakers on the negative will be Walter Edmunds and A. Harrison Munroe of Santa Monica. Admission will be 15 cents.

The same evening, Glendale sends a team to Santa Monica to debate the negative side of the question, consisting of Ellis Tipton and Dana Brukett, the latter substituting for Alex McElroy. The judges in all these events consist of three representatives from the three high schools of Los Angeles, Hollywood and the Polytechnic High; each principal of those schools sending a representative. Mr. A. W. Tower goes to Santa Monica Friday evening as a judge selected from the faculty of the Polytechnic. There will be music before and after the debate.

Along comes an iconoclast named Knapp, Prof. Charles Knapp, in fact, who declares after coming all the way from New York to relieve himself of the opinion, that the Greek theater at Berkeley is not Greek at all! Here we have been boasting for years that we had in California the only real old-master, blown-in-the-bottle, pedigreed Greek theater in the United States or elsewhere, and to find out that it is only a mongrel product of Greek and Roman architecture mixed up to suit our twentieth century taste, is depressing indeed. Hereafter we shall send our children elsewhere than to Berkeley to learn Greek!

The "mills of the gods" are grinding in more than one direction just now. The committee on expenditures in the interior department has upon recommendation of Louis D. Brandeis and Amos Pinchot, lawyers for the committee, brought into congress a report dismissing from consideration the Controller Bay charges. These charges it will be remembered reflected upon President Taft and were based upon the "Dick to Dick" letter which results seem to indicate, never existed except in the mind of a certain Miss Abbott who claimed to have seen it. Mr. Burke of South Dakota representing the Republican members of the committee demanded a continuance of the case, until Miss Abbott could be produced, but was voted down.

The story of one piece evidence proving the guilt of J. B. McNamara who blew up the Times building, reads like a revival of Sherlock Holmes, and that is the incident of the finger prints left by the criminal on the white painted mast of the tug Pastime, confirmed later by the female detective who secured a similar impression from him on a sheet of paper. The fate which overtook these criminals should have a deterrent effect upon any imitators. Every one engaged in a criminal conspiracy is dependent for safety upon the loyalty to him of every one else who participates with him in the crime. But aside from the chances he runs of confessions or information furnished by confederates, the man who plots against society is battling against relentless fate which will dog his footsteps to the end.

"The mills of God grind slowly, Yet they grind exceeding small, Tho' for years He may be grinding, With exactness grinds He all!"

THE "EQUALITY OF THE SEXES."

During the campaign on the equal suffrage question, the advocates of the admission of woman to the franchise talked a good deal about the "equality" of the sexes, a proposition which few of those on the other side disputed, although claiming that their natural attributes were in some ways dissimilar. But now that woman has been given the franchise, certain sentimentalists of the male persuasion in journalism and politics, are endeavoring to immediately put into operation new laws which will upset this equality and favor the newly enfranchised voters. It is proposed, for instance, to relieve the woman voter from the requirement exacted of the men, that of giving her age in applying for registration. Others wish her relieved from jury duty as a general proposition by adding to the professions and callings now exempt, others particularly applicable to woman. And as yet there is no indication on the part of our statesmen at Sacramento of any intention to impose upon woman equal responsibility in the payment of poll tax. As far as these matters have gone there is no demand made as yet by woman for these exemptions; she so far bears her political burdens like a "little man," but the sentimentalists of the alleged "sterner sex" is fairly stopping over in his efforts to cater to what he evidently believes is hereafter to be the dominant sex.

GETTING TOGETHER.

Prominent citizens of Los Angeles have been led by recent occurrences in that city to realize that in the past there has been a great loss of things both material and spiritual through the unnecessary contention between factions political and otherwise, and now seem to be actuated by a sincere desire to get together and work for the common good. There has been no definite plan made but the probability is that an organization will be formed composed of representative men of all classes and of various political affiliations.

Somebody worth while has said that nine-tenths of the trouble in the world is caused by misunderstandings. This is true and would be true if the proportion was greatly increased. The vast majority of the people of the world agree as to what is desirable in life, but broken up into rings and factions they fight over the means to be used to secure the thing desired.

The criminal class among the people is comparatively small and a large part of the wrong-doing in public and private life is the result of blundering ignorance rather than intent. There is no adequate excuse for the existence of class hatred and if the classes that find themselves warring with each other should mix up and get better acquainted the one with the other, this foolish and dangerous condition would disappear. This, of course, does not apply to the really criminal class, limited fortunately, but which society will have to fight against in self-protection in the future as it has in the past. The feeling between employers and employees should be a friendly one, each being dependent upon the other and it will be so if they do not persist in keeping too widely apart. The newly awakened conscience of the men and women of Los Angeles may work out some very interesting and much to be desired results and will be watched with great interest. Meantime let no one be irrevocably wedded to his own theory, but be ready to welcome any means that will tend to bring about in the daily life of our people a demonstration of the fact of the "Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man."

THE ANNEXATION ELECTION.

The election to decide whether Tropic and Glendale shall be consolidated and form one municipality to be known as Glendale, comes off tomorrow (Saturday). From the beginning of the contest the NEWS has been content to let this question be settled by the people of Tropic, and this in general has been the spirit of the people in the larger municipality. In Tropic the campaign has been a live one, although conducted without brass band accompaniment. In Glendale the result of the vote will doubtless show a practical unanimity of opinion in regard to the matter, a willingness to enter into a closer relationship with our sister city, but a willingness divested of anxiety. We believe that the unprejudiced observer would unhesitatingly pronounce in favor of consolidation as being a consummation calculated to advance the best interests of the entire community concerned. Looking over the field he would naturally conclude that it is one community and not two, that the whole section of country lying between the Los Angeles river and the mountains back of Glendale on the north, has similar interests and a common destiny. It is commonly conceded that ultimately the whole section involved in the election, with the territory adjoining, will before many years pass be a part of the great city of Los Angeles. Before this union takes place, however, there are a number of serious problems to be worked out and it must be apparent to any reasonable person that in the solution of these problems, the best results can be obtained only by the entire community working harmoniously together for the good of the whole. The consolidation of the community under one local government gives to the community a working force that will command respect from superior powers, give greater force to the means employed to secure the desired ends and in every practical way advance the best interests of all concerned. Another matter that is now pretty generally conceded is that no union with Los Angeles is desirable until the home community has provided for itself those public improvements which the spirit of progress demands; and it must also be conceded that these improvements can be the more readily obtained and at much less expense by the relatively larger municipality. There are other matters of detail which have been debated during the

Doesn't Believe in Santa Claus
CHRISTMAS TIME; ITS PROPER OBSERVANCE.

The impression is fast spreading that in the past great injury has come to children by a method of teaching, direct or indirect, under which the tender mind was filled with falsehood, especially at the Christmas time, when the false and supernatural was emphasized by parading Santa Claus with mythical and imaginary incidents, from all of which the child mind would forever recoil later on.

The holiest thing, outside of heaven, is the faith of a little child, and he is guilty who at any time deceives or abuses it. The Master himself canonized this simple, pure faith by declaring to the formalists of His time, "Except ye be converted and become as a little child, ye shall in no wise enter into the Kingdom of Heaven." He further said in protection of the trusting faith of childhood, "Woe unto him that shall offend any of these little ones. It were better for such an one that a millstone be hung about his neck and he be buried in the depths of the sea."

Now, whosoever, at any time, teaches a child anything that later on has to be declared false, or with the expectation that the child when older will discover to be false, offends these little ones in the very sense of which the Savior was speaking, and invites the millstone penalty, unless it is atoned for by penitence, as r

CHAPTER VI. TEMPEST.

IT was the first time Sheldon had been at close quarters with an American girl, and he would have wondered if all American girls were like Joan Lackland had he not had wit enough to realize that she was not at all typical. Her quick mind and changing moods bewildered him, while her outlook on life was so different from what he conceived a woman's outlook should be that he was more often than not at sixes and sevens with her. He could never anticipate what she would say or do next. Her temper was quick and stormy, and she relied too much on herself and too little on him, which did not approximate at all to his ideal of woman's conduct when a man was around. Her assumption of equality with him was disconcerting, and at times he half consciously resented the impudence and bizarreness of her intrusion upon him, rising out of the sea in a howling nor'wester, fresh from poking her revolver under Ericson's nose, protected by her gang of huge Polynesian sailors and settling down in Berande like any shipwrecked sailor. It was all on a par with her Baden-Powell and the long 38 Colt's.

At any rate, she did not look the part. And that was what he could not forgive. Had she been short haired, heavy jawed, large muscled, hard bitten and utterly unlovely in every way all would have been well, instead of which she was hopelessly and deliciously feminine. Her hair worried him, it was so generously beautiful. And she was so slenderly and prettily the woman—the girl, rather—that it cut him like a knife to see her with quick, comprehensive eyes and sharply imperative voice superintending the launching of the whaleboat through the surf. In imagination he could see her roping a horse, and it always made him shudder. Then, too, she was so many sided.

Sheldon certainly was not happy. The unconventional state of affairs was too much for his conservative disposition and training. Berande, inhabited by one lone white man, was no place for Joan Lackland. Yet he racked his brain for a way out, and even talked it over with her. In the first place, the steamer from Australia was not due for three weeks.

"One thing is evident; you don't want me here," she said. "I'll man the whale boat tomorrow and go over to Tulagi."

"But as I told you before, that is impossible," he cried. "There is no one there. The resident commissioner is away in Australia. There is only one white man, a third assistant understrapper and ex-sailor—a common sailor. He is in charge of the government of the Solomons, to say nothing of a hundred or so niggers—prisoners. Besides, he is such a fool that he would fine you $5 for not having entered at Tulagi, which is the port of entry, you know. He is not a nice man, and, I repeat, it is impossible."

"There is Guvutu," she suggested. "There's nothing there but fever and five white men who are drinking themselves to death. I couldn't permit it."

"Oh, thank you," she said quietly. "I guess I'll start today—Viaburi! You go along Noah, speak to me come along me."

Noah was her head sailor, who had been boatswain of the Miele. "Where are you going?" Sheldon asked in surprise. "Viaburi! You stop."

"To Guvutu—immediately," was her reply.

"But I won't permit it." "That is why I am going. You said it once before, and it is something I cannot brook."

"What?" He was bewildered by her sudden anger. "If I have offended in any way?"

"Viaburi, you fetch me one fell. No Noah along me," she commanded. The black boy started to obey.

"Viaburi! You no stop I break to head belong you. And now, Miss Lackland, I insist; you must explain. What have I said or done to merit this?"

"You have presumed, you have dared!"

She choked and swallowed and could not go on. Sheldon looked the picture of despair.

"I confess my head is going around with it all," he said. "If you could only be explicit."

"But you have no right—no man has the right—to tell me what he will permit or not permit. I'm too old to have a guardian, nor did I sail all the way to the Solomons to find one."

"A gentleman is every woman's guardian."

"Well, I'm not every woman—that's all. Will you kindly allow me to send your boy for Noah Noah? I wish him to launch the whaleboat. Or shall I go myself for him?"

Both were now on their feet, she with flushed cheeks and angry eyes, he, puzzled, vexed and alarmed. The black boy stood like a statue—a plumb black statue—taking no interest in the transactions of these incomprehensible whites.

"But you won't do anything so foolish!"—he began.

"There you go again," she cried.

"I didn't mean it that way, and you know I didn't." He was speaking slowly and gravely. "And that other thing, that not permitting—it is only a manner of speaking. Of course I am not your guardian. You know you can go to Guvutu if you want to"—or to the devil, he was almost tempted to add. "Only, I should deeply regret it, that is all. And I am very sorry that I should have said anything that hurt you. Remember, I am an Englishman."

Joan smiled and sat down again.

"Perhaps I have been hasty," she admitted. "You see, I am intolerant of restraint. If you only knew how I have been compelled to fight for my freedom. It is a sore point with me, this being told what I am to do or not to do by you self constituted lords of creation. Viaburi! You stop along kitchen. No bring me Noah Noah. And now, Mr. Sheldon, what am I to do? You don't want me here, and there doesn't seem to be any place for me to go."

"That is unfair. Your being wrecked here has been a godsend to me. I was very lonely and very sick. I really am not certain whether or not I should have pulled through had you not happened along. But that is not the point. Personally, purely selfishly personally, I should be sorry to see you go. But I am not considering myself. I am considering you. It—it is hardly the proper thing, you know. If I were married—if there were some woman of your own race here—but as it is—"

She threw up her hands in mock despair.

"I cannot follow you," she said. "In one breath you tell me I must go, and in the next breath you tell me there is no place to go and that you will not permit me to go. What is a poor girl to do?"

"That's the trouble," he said helplessly.

"And the situation annoys you."

"Only for your sake."

"Then let me save your feelings by telling you that it does not annoy me at all—except for the row you are making about it. I never allow what can't be changed to annoy me. I can't go elsewhere, by your own count. You certainly can't go elsewhere and leave me here alone with a whole plantation and 200 woolly cannibals on my hands. Therefore, you stay, and I stay. It is very simple. Also, it is adventure. And furthermore, you needn't worry for yourself. I am not matrimonially inclined. I came to the Solomons for a plantation, not a husband."

Sheldon flushed, but remained silent. "I know what you are thinking," she laughed gayly. "That if I were a man, you'd wring my neck for me. And I deserve it, too. I'm so sorry. I ought not to keep on hurting your feelings."

"I'm afraid I rather invite it," he said, relieved by the signs of the tempest subsiding.

"I have it," she announced. "Lend me a gang of your boys for today. I'll build a grass house for myself over in the far corner of the compound—on piles, of course. I can move in tonight. I'll be comfortable and safe. The Tahitians can keep an anchor watch just as aboard ship. And then I'll study coconut planting. In return, I'll run the kitchen end of your household and give you some decent food to eat. And finally, I won't listen to any of your protests. On the other hand, if you don't agree, I will go across the river, beyond your jurisdiction, and build a village for myself and my sailors, whom I shall send in the whaleboat to Guvutu for provisions. And now I want you to teach me billiards."

Joan took hold of the household with an uncertain grip, revolutionizing things till Sheldon hardly recognized the place. For the first time the bungalow was clean and orderly. No longer the house boys loafed and did as little as they could; while the cook complained that "head belong him walk about too much" from the strenuous course in cookery which she put him through. Nor did Sheldon escape being roundly lectured for his laziness in eating nothing but tinned provisions. She called him a muddler and a slouch, and other invidious names, for his slackness and his disregard of healthful food.

She sent her whaleboat down the coast twenty miles for limes and oranges, and wanted to know scathingly why said fruits had not long since

The Marlin Model 20 REPEATING RIFLE

You can buy no better gun for target work and all small game up to 200 yards.

Without change of mechanism it handles .22 short, long or long-rifle cartridges perfectly. The deep Ballard rifling develops maximum power and accuracy and adds years to the life of rifles.

The solid top is protection from defective cartridges—prevents powder and gas from being blown back. The side ejection never lets spent shells spoil your head and allows quick, accurate repeat shots. With simple take-down construction, removable action parts—least parts of any .22—it is the quickest and easiest to clean. A great vacation rifle. Ask any gun dealer.

been planted at Berande, while he was beneath contempt because there was no kitchen garden. Mummy apples, which he had regarded as weeds, under her guidance appeared as appetizing breakfast fruit, and, at dinner, were metamorphosed into puddings that elicited his unqualified admiration. She or her sailors dynamited fish daily, while the Balesuna natives were paid tobacco for bringing in oysters from the mangrove swamps.

Among other things, she burned the pestilential hospital, quarreled with Sheldon over the deed and in anger set her own men to work building a new and what she called a decent hospital. She robbed the windows of their lawn and muslin curtains, replacing them with gaudy calico from the trade store and made herself several gowns. When she wrote out a list of goods and clothing for herself, to be sent down to Sydney by the first steamer, Sheldon wondered how long she had made up her mind to stay.

She was certainly unlike any woman he had ever known or dreamed of. So far as he was concerned, she was not a woman at all. She neither languished nor blushed. No feminine lures were wasted on him. He might have been her brother, or she his brother, for all sex had to do with the strange situation. Despite his warnings about crocodiles and sharks, she persisted in swimming in deep water off the beach, nor could he persuade her, when she was in the boat, to let one of the sailors throw the dynamite when shooting fish. She argued that she was at least a little bit more intelligent than they and that, therefore, there was less liability of an accident if she did the shooting. She was to him the most masculine woman he had ever met.

A source of continual trouble between them was the disagreement over methods of handling the black boys. She ruled by stern kindness, rarely rewarding, never punishing, and he had to confess that her own sailors worshipped her, while the house boys were her slaves and did three times as much work for her as he had ever got out of them. She quickly saw the unrest of the contract laborers and was not blind to the danger, always imminent, that both she and Sheldon ran. Neither of them ever ventured out without a revolver, and the sailors who stood the night watches by Joan's grass house were armed with rifles. But Joan insisted that this reign of terror had been caused by the reign of fear practised by the white men. She had been brought up with the gentle Hawaiians, who never were ill-treated nor roughly handled, and she generalized that the Solomon Islanders, under kind treatment, would grow gentle.

One evening a terrific uproar arose in the barracks, and Sheldon, aided by Joan's sailors, succeeded in rescuing two women whom the blacks were beating to death. To save them from the vengeance of the blacks they were guarded in the cook house for the night. They were the two women who did the cooking for the laborers, and their offense had consisted of one of them taking a bath in the big cauldron in which the potatoes were boiled. The blacks were not outraged from the standpoint of cleanliness; they often took baths in the cauldrons themselves.

the trouble lay in that the father had been a low, degraded, wretched female, for to the Solomon Islanders all females are low, degraded and wretched.

Feats of Archery.

In the days when the buffalo was found in vast herds on the western plains there were Indians who, while riding at a gallop, could send an arrow through a buffalo's body. Remarkable as this archery was, yet it did not equal that reached by the archers of ancient times. It is of record that the MacRae of Gairloch, Scotland, were such skillful archers that they could hit a man at the distance of 500 yards. In 1794 the Turkish ambassador at London shot an arrow, in a field near that capital, 415 yards against the wind and 482 yards with the wind. The secretary of the ambassador, on hearing the expressions of surprise from the English gentlemen present, said the sultan had shot 500 yards. This was the greatest performance of modern days, but a pillar, standing on a plain near Constantinople, recorded shots ranging up to 800 yards. Sir Robert Ainslie, British ambassador to the sublime port, records that in 1798 he was present when the sultan shot an arrow 972 yards.—New York Press.

Mark Twain's German Coffee.

German coffee must have given Mark Twain a pain, judging from the following recipe which he gave for its concoction:

Take a barrel of water and bring it to a boil; rub a chicory berry against a coffee berry, then convey the former into the water. Continue the boiling and evaporation until the intensity of the flavor and aroma of the coffee and chicory have been diminished to a proper degree; then set aside to cool. Now unharness the remains of a once cow from the plow, insert them in a hydraulic press, and, when you shall have acquired a teaspoonful of that pale blue juice which a German superstition regards as milk, modify the malignity of its strength in a bucket of tepid water and bring up the breakfast. Mix the beverage in a cold cup, partake with moderation, and keep a wet rag around your head to guard against over excitement.

Professional Pride.

GOOD ADVICE FOR GLENDAL PEOPLE

People in Glendale who have constipation, sour stomach or gas on the stomach, should use simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as compounded in Adler-Lika, the new German appendicitis remedy. A SINGLE DOSE brings relief almost INSTANTLY because this simple mixture antisepticizes the digestive organs and drains the impurities. J. J. Nesom.

CALLED FOR SOME DENTAL WORK.

There have recently been a number of dentists' offices robbed in this section, one at San Fernando last Sunday night, and therefore it may not have surprised Dr. Rudy of Brand boulevard as much as it might otherwise have done when entering his office Tuesday morning he found that some one had been there since he closed up the night before and had got away with about $30 worth of gold and four or five dollars worth of other stuff. On a sheet of paper placed where it could be readily found, written in a clear businesslike hand was the following:

"S. C. Clark called for some dental work—8:45 p. m." Dr. Rudy remembers with suspicion that between five and six o'clock Monday evening he filled a tooth of a stranger who may have been Mr. Clark and Marshal Miller is now looking for the gentleman.

TUPPER-ROBINSON CO.

TO BED BEFORE 10 P. M.

Mrs. B. F. Carroll, wife of Iowa's governor, gave the high school students at Sioux City recently some good advice in an address on "The Physical Self." Among other things she said, "High school girls who wish to be fascinating should hope for nothing unless they retire regularly to bed by ten o'clock. High school boys are too young to call on the girls; they too should retire at ten. The company of mother at home is much to be preferred to patronizing the modern theater or the picture show and good morals could be served by less novel reading and more attention to cooking and sewing." Any mother who allows her daughter to go to the theater with a young man and afterward have lunch down-town is lacking in something. "She condemned light literature, the young woman who can cook and sew is far more valuable than the one who occupies her time in playing the piano and the latest rag time music. The age of the young people graduated from the high school nowadays, she said, is too young; they do not realize the importance of education. She pleaded with the students above all to keep their bodies pure and clean, to live regular lives and go to bed early. She concluded by saying that boys and girls are not bad and will not go wrong if the results of good living are shown to them. A child can easily be led to do right and it is not necessary to drive them."

A HORRIBLE INSTANCE.

Once upon a time, a man who was too economical to take a paper, sent his little boy to borrow the copy taken by his neighbors. In his haste, the boy ran over a four dollar stand of bees, and in ten minutes looked like a watery summer squash.

His cries reached his father, who ran to his assistance, and, failing to see a barb-wire fence, ran into it, breaking it down, cutting a handful of flesh from his anatomy and ruining a five-dollar pair of pants.

The old cow took advantage of the gap in the fence, got into the corn field and killed herself eating green corn. Hearing the racket, his wife ran out, upsetting a four-gallon churn full of rich cream into a basket of kittens, drowning the whole "flock." In her hurry she dropped a seven-dollar set of teeth. The baby, left alone, crawled through the spilled milk into the parlor and ruined a twenty-dollar carpet. During the excitement the oldest daughter ran away with the hired man, the calves got out and the dog broke up eleven setting hens. Moral—Subscribe yourself.—Ex.

ENTERTAINING LECTURE.

The renowned Polish patriot, Count Col. John Sobieski entertained his audience on Tuesday evening at Filger's opera house with interesting reminiscences of his life and career in the United States army. Col. Sobieski possesses a pleasing and magnetic personality which brings his audience in touch with him at once. The speaker alluded to the powerful Polish family of Sobieski and that crucial period in history when Christian Europe was delivered from the onslaught of 400,000 Mohammedans by 70,000 men under King John of Poland, grandfather of Col. Sobieski.

This lecture was the second event in the Meneley Lecture Bureau course. Glendale is fortunate in frequently having presented to her people rare talent usually heard only in large cities.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Miss Ethel Reynolds of Central avenue to Mr. Browne Mentel of San Diego. The wedding will take place at 2:30 Christmas day at the home of the bride's mother. A number of the select society people of this place have been favored with invitations.

HAVE INSTITUTED AUTO SERVICE.

One of the most prominent features of the many improvements made by the Tropicco Mercantile company during the past few weeks is the instituting of an auto delivery service. This started on Wednesday morning of this week. For the present the auto will be used to deliver goods to the outside routes of the Tropicco Mercantile, the inside routes being covered as usual with the wagons. Should the auto prove a success another machine will be purchased for the inside routes and the horse and wagon dispensed with altogether as far as delivery is concerned.

The machine purchased by the Tropicco company is an E. M. F. 30. The machine is of the most modern type and is ornamental as well as useful. Mr. Smith tells us that this auto service is "only one of the surprises in store for the Tropicco people." There are many little surprises for the readers of this paper in the advertisement run weekly by the Tropicco Mercantile. While the prices are "way down" the goods are "way up." A trial will certainly convince you.

WORK ON ARROYO BRIDGE BEGINS SOON.

The money is now all provided for the great bridge over the Arroyo Seco connecting Pasadena and Eagle Rock, a part of the Good Roads system of highways. Advertisement for bids will start at once and work should begin within a few weeks. Glendale and vicinity has a direct interest in this structure, as it is one of the necessary links in the great highway, the most of which is now constructed, connecting the eastern part of the county and all of the foothill country in that direction with the sea. When completed there will be no thoroughfare in the county more popular as over it daily will pass between Pasadena and Santa Monica a large portion of the automobile travel between those points. Another important section yet to be completed is the east part of Sixth street in Glendale. This is to be opened, widened and improved and as final proceedings are now under way, work on the street will commence about March first.

LOS ANGELES THEATRES

"THE BUTTERFLY AND THE BAT" AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE. (Die Fledermaus.)

Ferris Hartman announces the production of "The Butterfly and the Bat," Johann Strauss' melodic comedy operetta for the week beginning with Sunday matinee. "The Butterfly and the Bat" or "Die Fledermaus" is perhaps one of the most famous musical offerings ever made and is known as "Johann Strauss' success," which was produced originally at the New York Casino, later transferred to the Metropolitan Opera House and then played in the principal cities of the East and the European capitals. Everywhere this opera has been produced, it has been lauded to the skies by critics and has been most liberally patronized. It was produced last year in New York and was presented later in several of the large eastern cities and then transferred to London, where it is now meeting with its usual deserved success. The name of the author, Johann Strauss, is known to millions through his "Blue Danube" and other waltzes. Little wonder that his opera should abound in rhythmic dance numbers. The Operetta is Vienna in its origin and like "The Merry Widow," "The Siren" and "The Spring Maid" carries that intoxicating flavor which only the masters of the waltz theme can impart to a stage creation. In the cast will be seen Miss Nena Bryant, former leading woman at the Burbank; Miss Dingwall plays the Rosalind, and Ferris Hartman the intangible Fresh, turnkey of the jail.
